Saturday, February 26, 2011 - Up-to-date information on paid domain parking services.

What is domain parking? Domain parking lets you easily "park" your domain and earn money. No hassles with web hosting or content creation. The domain parking services described here provide free hosting and pay you every time someone clicks on a link.

Parking revenue had stabilized until Bing took over from Yahoo on some services. Now things are pretty unstable. Quasi-development options such as WhyPark are gaining ground, but it's still quick and easy to park domains that aren't otherwise being used. These services differ in important ways, and one may work better than another for you. Whether you are a domain professional or someone holding a single valuable name, parking with one of these domain parking services will turn your traffic into income. ParkQuick will help you develop the strategies you need for optimal domain parking.

Recommended Services:

Overview

- Some domain parking services require that you own a minimum number of domains, others do not. (Compare features of recommended services here.)
- Changes that you make appear immediately with some parking services, while others require prior approval. All provide free hosting.

- Some of these domain parking services will automatically optimize your domains based on what people search for.

Getting Started

If you have at least 50 - 100 domains:

Park most of your domains at Sedo or SedoPro (contact us for an invitation). NameDrive and Sedo & SedoPro are recommended for international domains. Domain Sponsor is another recommended choice for small and large portfolios.

SmartName is still recommended for its "Smartname Shops" feature for creating full e-commerce sites quickly. WhyPark has similar potential Check out other pages of this site for more on the strengths and weaknesses of these services. Avoid Bing-based services for now (such as Parked, TrafficZ, and SmartName 's regular parking).

If you have less than 50 domains:
